

National Home Inspector Study

BECOME A HOME INSPECTOR

Professional Home Inspection in Demand

According to the American Society of Home Inspectors organization, 77% of home sales in the United States today are inspected prior to purchase. As more Americans buy and sell homes, the need for qualified professionals grows. An increasing number of states are just beginning to establish licensing requirements for inspectors, making now the perfect time to enter into this growing field.

How to Prepare for and Pass the National Home Inspectors Exam

Click below for details on our course materials and price.

Pricing, Course Description & Ordering - Special Offer for Only $295

State Regulations

With today's flourishing real estate market, the need for qualified home inspectors continues to grow. As a result, the time has never been better to consider a career in this rewarding field. This self-study material can be used as distance learning for the following states. If your state is not listed below, your state may require classroom learning; you should contact your local state agency regulator for more details. The following states do not have a precicensing requirement, our course merely prepares you to pass either the National Home Inspector Association or the American Home Inspector Association's exam.

Alabama
Arkansas
California
Colorado
District of Columbia
Delaware
Florida
Georgia
Hawaii
Idaho
Illinois
Indiana

Iowa
Kansas
Maine
Michigan

Minnesota
Missouri
Montana
Nebraska
Nevada
New Hampshire
North Dakota

Ohio
Philadelphia
Pennsylvania
South Carolina
South Dakota
Utah
Vermont
Virginia
Washington
Wisconsin

SEE OUR UNPARALLELED INNOVATED eDICTIONARY TOOL